Pieces away kill me with your flaming sword let me taste of thy light let nothing that is unfit remain unassailed let it all fall away and die it is of no use if it is not already perfect let your light blind me an angel of fire rend your justice upon me and hold back no single thing the curse of the coward

May he be cursed with the curse of Yistus; it is the curse of death eye disease for his eyes foot disease for his foot heart disease for his heart head disease for his head disease of the side for his side against his whole body against his whole being may demons seize him and his home be never relinquished may the demons seize him and drag out his soul may he destiny be decreed to hold nothing but death a curse upon his grave a curse upon his ghost may he find nothing but torment among those who are dead may his ghost find no rest in its suffering may he receive no food offerings may he receive no drink offerings may his ghost find nothing but loneliness may his ghost be barred entry to the city of the dead let Yistus refuse him may the guards deny him may the boatman deny him passage may his bribe be refused may he be sent away may the river be to him as poison like a great serpent may it try to devour him if he dare approach may he wander the desert as one who is desperate with thirst may he wander the desert as one who is desperate for food may he wander the desert as one who is desperate for companionship may he seek these things endlessly and never find them may his ghost be cursed among those who are dead may his offspring be cursed among the living and among the dead

The Beast Within

I have gazed into the heart of the beast within I have seen its evil and yet I have decided still to ride it why it is better to use the beast than to be its adversary

The Calling of Four

First I bellow “Begone serpents of Yistus ” I call east and call to Fortia I call south and call to Renati I call west and call to Raizen I call north and call to Therio finally I turn and cry “Spirits of wind spirits of water spirits of earth and spirits of fire come swiftly and be with me this day and hear let it be ” I do this every day and every night and at the start of every rite

A Lullaby

Now I lay and fail to sleep Therio my thoughts please reap Nadiriz’s form my mind please make a body free from endless wake

Chapter 11: Proverbs

Proverbs

All are equal in the eyes of the divine

Your mental health is as important as your physical health; take care of yourself

Your worth is not judged by the size of your bank account

Authority is harmful as it is always maintained by violence

Helping others is always a worthwhile cause

Failure is an opportunity to learn

The greatest crimes of humanity are cowardice selfishness and apathy

Life should be a constant pursuit of improving oneself for the good of all

To struggle is to gain but to inflict struggle on another is cruelty

Respect all life or your life deserves none

Do not confuse convictions with facts

Fear is the enemy of love

Courage is like a river when the waters are high things move faster but dangerously when the waters are low things are much slower but much more manageable

The illusion of authority can convince even the most docile among us to turn to violence and then justify it to themselves

No truly authority is legitimate for we are all equal to the cosmos
